DVAtion [digital variable artist/s] is a group of individual artists and designers who combine art forms and creative practices to produce contemporary multi-media art and theatre.

Through the utilisation of digital technology, and the fusion of music, visual art, photography, literature, film/video and animation, the collective seeks to develop presentations within contemporary culture, music, and club environments, with a view to addressing a new audience distribution network for future productions.

aims and objectives + identity words:

engage with individual, social and political issues within contemporary cultural, physical and virtual environments.

challenge current notions of artistic practice and expression through the creative use of new models for development of combined art collaborations.

construct an alternative, fluid network of skills/resources and support for experimentation (and artistic risk/anonymity) within the arts.

fusion (east and west) | variable | action | manual/analogue/digital | impact black and white